

Iraqis Have the Right to Vote.

Why Don't Minnesotans?

The Minnesota House has passed the state marriage amendment bill two years in a row. But before the people of Minnesota can vote on marriage, the bill must be passed in the Senate.

A few state senators are attempting to silence the majority of Minnesotans who want to vote on marriage by blocking a vote in the Senate.

Time is of the essence. To our north, Canada legalized same-sex marriage last year. To our south, a lawsuit has just been filed in Iowa challenging that state's marriage laws. Our neighbors to our east and west have either already passed a marriage amendment or will put the question to a vote by their citizens this November.

Minnesotans deserve the chance to protect marriage as the union of one man and one woman before judicial tyrants or backroom deal making in our state legislature force-feed you and your family a radical agenda.

Let the people vote in 2006.
